

I pay to receive traffic and weather channels on XM Satellite Radio. Why on earth would the FCC even consider limiting what a services XM Radio may provide to paid subscribers? Do you think I should not receive traffic and weather on paid cable TV, paid internet, and maybe my paid newspaper? Sounds like radio & TV stations are trying to make money by restricting trade, because they are loosing a competitinve edge. The government should let businesses compete for users and step aside!